

APHRS-Certified Fellowship Training Centre

Name of Training Centre	Keimyung University Dongsan Hospital
Short Introduction	Keimyung University Dongsan Hospital is a high-volume tertiary arrhythmia referral center in Daegu, Republic of Korea, and serves as a major referral hub for complex electrophysiology cases. Our procedural volume and clinical outcomes reflect a sustained commitment to excellence in patient care and advanced electrophysiological practice. We manage a broad spectrum of arrhythmia patients, providing an ideal environment for training physicians who wish to build strong clinical foundations in contemporary electrophysiology. In the past year, we performed approximately 700 catheter ablation procedures and 450 cardiac implantable electronic device (CIED) implantations, offering trainees exposure to diverse and challenging real-world clinical scenarios in a structured academic setting. Our center actively adopts state-of-the-art technologies, including pulsed field ablation (PFA), leadless pacemakers, and conduction system pacing (CSP), which are integrated into routine clinical practice. These advanced approaches not only improve patient outcomes but also allow trainees to observe contemporary procedural strategies and clinical decision-making that are shaping the field of cardiac electrophysiology. Training at our institution is characterized by close clinical observation, case-based discussions, and consistent exposure to the management of complex cases. Our multidisciplinary team fosters a collaborative learning environment that emphasizes thoughtful procedural planning and comprehensive patient care. Through structured participation in routine clinical practice and case management, trainees can gain practical insights into modern electrophysiology. Our center aims to provide an academically grounded training environment for physicians seeking further experience in arrhythmia care and device therapy.
